Public Artwork and Installations

Significant public projects demand impressive public art installations. Public art installations need to provide a bold visionary statement and withstand the rigours of the public environment.

HUB works cooperatively with artists and architect to turn visionary concepts into reality. Through design and research HUB can ensure that the artistic vision is retained while delivering a robust public solution.

Typically Public Art will stretch the boundaries of materials and their application in the public domain. HUB embraces the concept of going where no others have been. The nature of public art installations is that they are usually "one off" projects with unique technical issues.

HUB embraces the potential of different production methods and continues to explore new possibilities that will provide the best solution for the project.

Through the research into materials, fasteners, adhesives, and finishes HUB is able to deliver high quality, contemporary design solutions that retain the artistic vision and will endure over time. HUB is able to produce samples and prototypes as part of the development process, and test these to validate solutions before proceeding to final production.

The successful realization of the vision of a public art project relies on getting the little things right. HUB's detailed design and documentation ensures seamless path from vision to production.
